Success does not mean the same thing to everyone. For some, it means to get to the top at all costs: in power, in fame, and in income. For others, it means just to fulfill their basic needs or wants with as little effort as required.

Most people fall within the two extremes. They work quite hard to better their lives at home, at work, and in the social world. They realize that success for them is not in being at the top but rather in trying to improve their quality of life.
